

Dear Towers Community,

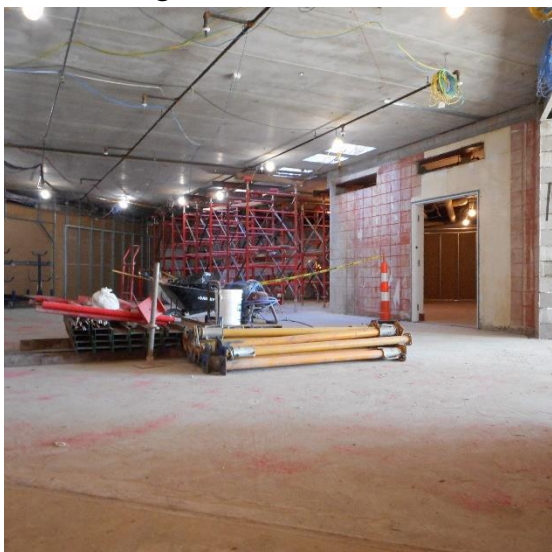

Last week, while Gus and I attended the Association of Jewish Aging Services (AJAS) Conference, Montagno and their partners were hard at work; here are some updates about our spaces.

Exterior Dining and Entrance Site Work

Lots of progress in these areas; the concrete footings were poured for our foundation (these support the concrete foundation floor).

This is really nice progress and puts us on track to pour the actual foundation within the next week or two.

As you can see in the picture, the car port is almost ready to be fully demolished. Once the pillars are removed, we can pour new concrete and get the Tower One front entrance back open again. We're getting close and we appreciate everyone's patience. You've all been amazing thus far!

Dining Space/Display Kitchen

Our display kitchen is really starting to take shape; about half of the concrete blocking has been removed and the steel beams are on their way.

These beams will give us that open concept and allow us to highlight our chefs cooking live in front of you. Mmm, I can just smell the matzo ball soup and brisket being prepared right now! 😊

Inside the actual Dining Room, the framing for what will be our fireplace and acoustic ceilings has begun to be installed.

By giving the ceilings varying heights we can make the dining experience not so loud and echoing. Having the fireplace going during those cold months will also add a warm comfortable feeling to our dining experience. Personally, I can't wait to sit in a lounge chair near the fire and enjoy some warmth.

Upcoming Work

The focus over the next week will be to continue with the removal of the carport and preparing for the large concrete pour. Montagno is aware of and planning around the important dates for Passover.

We've kept their team, Morrison and our Mashgiach all in touch so that everything runs smoothly for Passover. We are looking forward to having families once again join their loved ones here at The Towers for Passover Seders next year in our new dining space.

As always, I am humbled and so grateful for our community's support and patience during this process. The wait will have been worth it when we are able to celebrate our newly renovated spaces with all of you; it's an exciting time!

Jesse Wescott

Associate Vice President – The Towers at Tower Lane