Welcome to August! The weather these past several days has been simply wonderful and we're hoping you all have gotten a chance to enjoy! Looking at the progress of Phase 1, Stage 1 of our Ground Floor Renovation we've got some exciting pictures to share.

Exterior Dining and Entrance Site Work

The solarium, with its freshly poured floor, received the remainder of the structural steel work and you can really start to get a sense of what the wall of glass will look like, when you see our work in progress next to a rendering.

In the coming weeks we'll start to see the exterior stone work and glass go into this space and then interior framing and drywall can start to make it truly look like a room.

Dining Space/Display Kitchen

We wanted to share this large picture of the main dining area so that you can see the detailed work that is emerging.

If you look closely, you can get a sense of the varying ceiling heights for each “space” inside the dining area.

Those grids will hold special acoustic ceiling tiles that control the sound levels during meals, making it easier to hear one another and enjoy conversation.

This space here will be the meat kitchen area, where our culinarians from Morrison will be able to prepare food out in front so we can all see, hear and smell their delicious creations in the making. This will add to our dining experience in a very impactful manner.

Upcoming Work

We met this past week with the finish carpenters and they’re starting the process of building our benches and the actual millwork finishes. Things are progressing and it’s been a wonderful journey to see the progress. As always, thank you all for reading; we are so excited to one day showcase this to you in person!
